A novel entertainment, and a most enjoyable one to all, was the meaning society, which took place at the home of Mrs. Samuel Conrad, Friday evening.

This social feature was for the benefit of the Baptist parsonage, and of course the measures went up high and yielded a nice sum, which goes to the credit of the parsonage fund.

It is said that a fragrant rose placed on a writer's desk whether of any note or not, is an excellent incentive to bring out the best in the writer. This has been tried by the writer and found to be just as stated—moreover there developed on Monday evening another charming trial of the same way and has the same productive qualities as the rose, when it comes to aiding one on the line of thought. This was the meeting of the mandolin and guitar club in the bachelor quarters, over the Y. M. C. A. so tastefully arranged by our esteemed friend Mr. O. T. Skillman. The music was clear, smooth, splendid and lasted for two hours. The club is composed of Misses Allene Moore, Mayne Moore, Sallie Gregory, Maudie White and Florence Cottrill. Messrs: O. T. and J. M.
